Excerpt: . viii the reformation The enormous increase of money which had been produced by the trade of Uzziah s reign threatened to overwhelm the simple economy under which every family had its croft. As in many another land and period, the social problem was the descent of wealthy men, land-hungry, upon the rural districts. They made the poor their debtors, and bought out the peasant proprietors. They absorbed into their power numbers of homes, and had at their individual disposal the lives and the happiness of thousands of their fellow-countrymen. Isaiah had cried, Woe upon them that join house to house, that lay field to field, till there be no room for the common people, and the inhabitants of the rural districts grow fewer and fewer. Micah pictures the recklessness of those plutocrats--the fatal ease with which their wealth enabled them to dispossess the yeomen of Judah. They covet fields and seize them, houses and lift them up. So they crush a good man and his home, a man and his heritage. This is the evil--the ease with which wrong is done in the country! It lies to the power of their hands; they covet and seize. And what is it that they get so easily--not merely field and house, so much land and stone and lime; it is human life, with all that makes up personal independence, and the security of home and of the family. The tyranny of wealth was aided by...
